

PRACTICAL EXAM #3

1. What type of cardiac abnormality is demonstrated in this parasternal long-axis image?
 - a. Tetralogy of Fallot
 - b. Double outlet right ventricle
 - c. d-transposition of the great arteries
 - d. Pulmonary atresia with ventricular septal defect
2. What palliative procedure is often performed before surgery on this type of cardiac abnormality?
 - a. Atrial switch
 - b. Arterial switch
 - c. Atrial septectomy
 - d. Balloon septostomy
3. What is the primary repair for this type of congenital heart defect?
 - a. Atrial switch
 - b. Arterial switch
 - c. Atrial septectomy
 - d. Balloon septostomy